Foreword

We hope you will like our account of the school year. As you look at these things of the past, which we have enjoyed so much presenting to you, you may naturally wonder: I've had a grand year, but what of the future? Dreams are the basis of our future accomplishments, a revelation of our aspirations, and a goal toward which we may work.

May your 'dreams' come true.

Mr. Martin, you will not need this yearbook to help you remember the year 1949-50, a year of work, fun, happiness, sports, marvelous school spirit, and cooperation. We know it has been through your able leadership and example that we have had this successful year. Knowing how to mix fun with work, jollity with sincerity, and maintain a high standard in our school are qualities that have endeared you to the student body. So we would like to dedicate to you-the ROUND-UP; a recording of our dreams come true because of your untiring efforts.
